AI answers checked last quarter

9% → 31%
median share of answer after six months

Share of answer: how often you're named when buyers ask an AI engine about your category. Past results across retainer clients, 2023–2026. Not a promise.

Three ways we move your share of answer

Most retainers use all three. You can also start with the audit alone.

Visibility audit

200+ buyer prompts across all five engines, scored against your top four competitors. Delivered in 14 days.

Answer-ready pages

Pricing, comparison and docs pages rewritten so models can quote them accurately.

Source building

Placements in the reviews, guides and threads AI already trusts in your category.

What the first three months look like

Every retainer starts the same way. After that, the plan follows what the data shows.

Weeks 1–2

Audit

We pick your prompts with you, run them across five engines every day and score you against four competitors.

Weeks 3–6

Fix

We correct what AI gets wrong about you: pricing, features, who you're for. Then we rewrite the pages it quotes.

Month 2 on

Earn

We build the sources AI trusts in your category: reviews, guides, comparison articles, community threads.

Every Friday

Report

A changelog of what we shipped and what moved, plus a 30-minute review call each month.

Every change we ship, logged every Friday

You see what we did, why, and what moved. No monthly deck that says "brand awareness is up."

Oct 17

Rewrote the pricing page for AI readers +6 prompts

Plan names, seat limits and prices now sit in one plain table. ChatGPT was quoting last year's pricing.

ChatGPT

Oct 10

Earned a spot in two CRM buyer guides +11 prompts

Both guides are now cited by Perplexity for "best CRM" prompts.

Perplexity AI Overviews

Oct 3

Fixed product facts across 14 directories +3 prompts

Founding year, HQ and integrations now match everywhere, so Gemini stops mixing Northbeam up with another company.

Northbeam · CRM for small sales teams

From missing to the first answer

How a Series B CRM got named in buyer answers across all five engines.

Tallyhaus · Expense management

ChatGPT stopped quoting last year's pricing

One plain pricing table fixed most of the wrong answers in ten weeks.

Corvid · SOC 2 compliance automation

Cited for the compliance questions buyers ask

Earned sources moved Corvid into most Perplexity answers in its category.

4% → 38% share of answer · 9 months

62% → 3% wrong pricing · 10 weeks

6 → 41 of 60 prompts cited · 6 months

What clients say after six months

The answer we'd want an AI to give, with our clients as the sources.

What do clients say about working with Answerline?

3 sources

Clients mostly mention three things. They can see the work every week, not just at renewal. Wrong facts about them stop showing up within weeks. And the reporting is plain enough for a CEO to read.

1 Northbeam 2 Rotaly 3 Corvid

"We'd spent a year on SEO and still weren't in a single ChatGPT answer for our category. The Friday changelog is the only agency report our CEO actually reads."

Lena Hartmann
VP Marketing, Northbeam

"They found that Gemini thought we were a staffing agency. Nobody on our team had noticed. Eight weeks later it describes us correctly in almost every answer."

Tobias Grant
Head of Growth, Rotaly

"Two competitors owned the 'best SOC 2 tool' answers for a year. Six months in, Perplexity cites us in most of them, and we can see which placements did it."

Marcus Ellery
CMO, Corvid

Simple pricing, fixed before we start

Start with an audit, or go straight to a retainer. The first three months are fixed, then it's month to month.

Questions we get on the first call

Anything else, ask us at hello@answerline.co.

Is this just SEO with a new name?

No, but it builds on it. Classic SEO gets you ranked; AI search decides whether a model mentions you and how it describes you. We track answers, not rankings, and much of the work happens off your site.

Which AI engines do you track?

How soon will we see a change?

Can you guarantee we'll be cited?

Do you write AI-generated content?
